Negotiation is a kind of dialogue in a strategic manner whose purpose is to reach several solutions and choose the most appropriate among them for the existing problem

As for Economic Negotiation, they are talks related to investment projects, including industrial, agricultural, and tourism. It is an international negotiation between a state and another state, or between a state and an international body, or between a state and a company about the realization and implementation of one of these economic projects

In the case of negotiating between a state and a specialized company or companies, general principles should be followed, which are

- The theory of economic activity

- Prioritizing national goals

 - Understand the goals of the foreign investor

 - Understand the competitive situation

Types of Negotiation

There is more than one type of negotiation, which are

- Negotiate the interests of both parties

It represents the agreements that take place between two parties, which is a method aimed at achieving common interests and the purpose of which is to achieve gains for both parties

The two parties are trying to reach a clear and understandable agreement formula, through which no harm can be caused to one of the parties, and this agreement is considered comprehensive and deep

Negotiating in order to achieve gains for one party while neglecting the other

This type of negotiation falls under the rule of "win and let others lose."

Likewise, in the event that one of the parties, which is the strong party, puts pressure on the weaker party, taking advantage of its weaknesses, and negotiation of this type is not considered continuous, but it changes at any time so that the situation can be reversed and the previously weak party becomes the strongest

Thus, he resorts to the policy of exhaustion and attrition of the other party, as happened with him, trying to prove himself and his value

Exploratory Negotiation

It is one of the types of negotiation in which each of its parties tries to know what is meant by the other party, and this negotiation often occurs through mediators, or directly confronting the parties together

soothing negotiation

Its purpose is to reduce the percentage of disagreement and disagreement, and to try to resort to satisfactory solutions that achieve the appropriate for both parties, and this type of negotiation is outside the time restriction

Negotiation of influence in a third party

It refers to influencing other parties in the negotiation without a direct relationship or relationship with the two parties negotiating mediators

It is the most popular and current type in the current era in the fields of trade and politics, as both parties target another party to arbitrate between them, but this type may carry some negatives such as the alignment of the mediator to a particular party, which makes it a failed negotiation process

How is the negotiation process

The negotiation is at the table with the aim of reaching compromise solutions, and is often in the political and entrepreneurial field

The negotiation process does not take place well and successfully unless special negotiation skills are available, and these skills are strategic and ethical whose purpose is to attract the other party to deny the opinion, but in a convincing and polite manner

The people who carry out the negotiation process are called "diplomats or legislators", and they are also called by other names that vary according to the field

If the negotiating person works professionally, he is called a specialist, and if it concerns peace treaties or international agreements, he is called a peace negotiator
