What is electronic marketing and what are its types

The term e -marketing is expressed in the marketing process for different products or services via the Internet, and this process aims to deliver these products or services to different segments of people, and companies can benefit from this process to deliver a message about themselves or conduct a search via the Internet, and the importance of e -marketing stems In marketing processes, the Internet is considered an effective way to determine the market that will be targeted, in addition to being a helping way to study the requirements and needs of the marketing sector

Types of electronic marketing

Search engines marketing

Marketing through search engines is one of the effective ways and is able to develop your commercial activity in the market, especially in light of the presence of competitors within the same field or content

SEO search engines improve

One of the most important points that must be paid attention to and work in e -marketing is the development of traffic on the site, in order to attract people to the company's products, promote and introduce them and when winning loyalty and confidence of the customer, visitors become permanent customers.

Marketing via social networks

This method is a type of e -marketing and it is an effective tool that companies have used for many reasons, including communication with customers and customers and advertising products and services

Email marketing

This type provides the ability to send information about your company's products to the people on your mailing list, and surround them with all developments and offers

Advertising marketing

This is very similar to road ads, you will determine the budget that can be paid and then this advertisement will appear on websites or previously specified programs.

Content marketing

It is also a type of e -marketing that is similar to that you come across an article that talks about a certain hour type and this article shows that a technique of artificial intelligence techniques has been used in it, and this talk encouraged you to search more about the type of watch and its advantages and then purchased it

Commission

This type of e -marketing is based on the exchange of interests between the owner of the service or the brand and between the marketer or the publisher

Marketing influencers

In previous periods, companies have relied on actors and celebrities to show many clothes, watches, glasses and many others. This returns because most people try to imitate these celebrities and represent them

What are the characteristics and importance of electronic marketing

First: The susceptibility to electronic marketing, You might also be interested in checking out influencer marketing.

Many web sites encourage visitors to register to give them how important they are in their use of the site or to access the distinguished areas until some are required. Registration forms usually require basic information, such as name, email, age and job, through which marketing can create user profiles to enhance their marketing efforts.

Second: The ability to interact in electronic marketing

Another distinctive feature of e -marketing is the interaction, which allows customers to express their needs and want directly to a company in response to its marketing contacts. In (Bluenile.com), for example, shoppers in the search episodes for their needs can click on any time you feel that he needs a specific product while searching to create a popup window where they can comment on their search efforts. Comments are sent immediately to the appropriate interior to address direct comments

Third: E -marketing has a suitable memory

The memory refers to the company's ability to access databases or data warehouses that contain individual customer profiles and the date of the previous purchase and use this data in an actual time to customize its marketing offer for a specific customer. As the database is a set of information arranged to facilitate access and retrieval

Fourth: The possibility of monitoring in e -marketing

In the context of e -marketing, control indicates the ability of customers to organize the information they see in addition to the rate and sequence of their exposure to that information. The web is sometimes referred to as an attractive mediator because users determine what they see on web sites; Website operators' ability to control the content that users view and in any sequence is limited

Fifth: The possibility of access in electronic marketing

An unusual amount of information is available on the Internet and is indicated by the ability to obtain it with access. Since customers can access in -depth information about competing products, prices, reviews, blog opinions, etc., they are aware of the company's products and their relative value better than ever. As anyone looking to buy a new truck can buy
